

Task 5: Insights & Summary

Key Findings:

- Approximately 88.34% of the reviews are Positive, indicating that most customers are satisfied with the products.
- Around 10.05% of the reviews are Negative, showing that a smaller portion of customers had poor experiences.
- Neutral reviews account for about 1.60%, representing mixed or unclear opinions.

Customer Complaints:

Negative reviews commonly mention issues such as poor taste, packaging problems, expired or damaged products, and dissatisfaction with product quality.

Surprising Observation:

One interesting observation is that some reviews with lower ratings still have slightly positive sentiment scores, indicating that textual sentiment and numerical ratings do not always perfectly align.

Recommendation:

The business should focus on improving product quality and packaging, as these are common concerns in negative reviews. Additionally, monitoring sentiment trends can help quickly identify and address customer issues.
